The College of Humanities and Social Sciences is now accepting requests for professional development funding to support travel related to distance education (conference or training seminar). This support is only offered to full-time CHSS faculty and is limited to qualified reimbursable expenses of a maximum of $1500 domestic travel/$3000 international travel. While not required, preference will be given to faculty facilitating training or presenting on e-learning at a conference.

Goals

The goals associated with funding this professional development are

1) Faculty identification of reputable conferences and training seminars advancing online learning (including mobile, hybrid, blended, e-learning, and distance education).*

2) Assessment of the pedagogical value of new technologies, theories, and skills promoted at these conferences and training seminars.

3) Communication and dissemination within the College of new technologies, theories, and skills learned.
Process

1) Identify the conference you will attend. If you are presenting, attach the confirmation of your acceptance. If you have applied to present but do not yet know if you are accepted, attach your proposal to your application for funding. You can also be funded for attending, if your application is strong. No matter whether you are presenting or not, in your application, clearly explain how the conference/seminar will advance the understanding of new technologies, theories, and skills related to e-learning. This explanation should include why the particular conference was chosen, how the conference is related to distance or mobile learning or is discipline specific with a clear online or mobile learning component. If you are attending a discipline-specific conference that is not clearly related to online learning, please include a past or present program for this conference and highlight the online-learning related panels included there so the committee can clearly see the opportunities you will have to advance your knowledge.

2) Explain how attendance at the conference will benefit the department and college

3) Submit a detailed and exact estimate of travel costs. For example, if you are parking at “The Parking Spot” in Atlanta for airport parking, include the exact estimate of that parking cost in your budget. Use the GSA per diem rates (https://www.gsa.gov/portal/content/104877) in your estimates.

4) Obtain the support of the Department Chair and Department Online Coordinator and approval by the CHSS Director of Distance Education (Dr. Tamara Powell)

5) Commit to the creation of an online module designed to share the information gained at the conference or training seminar with other faculty (Due within 90 days of return from travel). The module should be self-contained and designed to function without a faculty moderator. Modules will be used by the CHSS Office of Distance Education in training designed to advance the e-learning skills of CHSS faculty. Instructional design help from the College of Humanities and Social Sciences Office of Distance Education is available in creation of a module. A module includes two to three module objectives, a checklist, content (such as a video or text lecture), and assessment such as a self-graded quiz. Modules will be used in the CHSS workshops with full credit to the creator. Failure to create and deliver the module will result in disqualification from future online professional development opportunities.

To request funding, please fill out the attached sheet including ALL required signatures and return it to the CHSS Office of Distance Education in Social Science 5008. Please see scoring rubric on page 7.

If you have any questions, please contact Tamara Powell at tpowel25@kennesaw.edu or 470.578.2911.

* With the proliferation of conferences/training seminars related to e-learning, choosing a reputable option can be difficult. A list of respected e-learning conferences/training seminars can be found at the end of this application. Please note that the conferences/training seminars identified are only recommendations and that funding is NOT restricted to attending those listed.

3. Rationale and Funding

Please attach a brief statement discussing your rationale for choosing this conference/training seminar and what your goals are for your attendance at this conference. Does the conference/training seminar focus more on technology, pedagogy, or both? If you are presenting, include your confirmation from the conference. If you have applied to present but do not yet have a response, please include your proposal that you have sent. If presenting/attending an e-learning panel/session at a discipline specific conference, please identify the session title and focus. If you are attending a discipline-specific conference, attach a program from the past or upcoming conference and highlight panels related to distance learning. Please explain how attendance at this conference will benefit the college, your department, and KSU students. If your attendance aligns with specific departmental, college, or university goals, please include that explanation to support your application. Please explain what you believe you will gain from attending this conference, what you believe you will share with your fellow faculty, and how you will share what you learn at the conference with fellow faculty. Please share ideas you have for your module at this time. Please explain clearly what you think you will share in your module that you will produce upon your return.

Also, please explain whether or not you have received any funding for this conference travel through other channels—your department, a grant, etc. Please explain if you are not eligible for additional funding or if your allotted funding has already been allocated for another opportunity. Take care creating the budget below. Be exact in your information—use the GSA per diem rates (https://www.gsa.gov/portal/content/104877).
